

One day I began to think what I would do if I were rich, and you know what I thought, nothing, since I am only interested in buying one thing, but the problem is explaining to your parents why you were saving money for 2 years so that later they realize that you have a somewhat extravagant figure of extremely questionable origin in your room, the annoying thing is not thinking about which one to buy, but looking for a place where your parents will not see it and then they will bother you for spending a lot of money on it. But I think I will also need more hiding places in case I plan to buy more.
