

La Tatuana

She is a beautiful young woman who appears in towns and cities, with large blue eyes and knowledgeable about all things of love. He places a sale of love spells in a small room with which he links men and women. By causing such a ruckus in the town she is captured and taken to the town jail where she settles with her sale.

When he is in prison he takes out a piece of chalk or a piece of charcoal, paints a little boat on the wall, climbs on it and flies out through the prison bars and shows up doing love favors in another town or village.

According to the legends of Guatemala, the story of Guatemala, the story of La Tatuana tells about a woman accused of witchcraft, which is why she was imprisoned and subjected to the laws of the holy inquisition. It is said that because she was accused she of witchcraft and imprisoned, the woman she went crazy and made a pact with the devil. This being freed her from jail. In addition, he condemned her to wander forever on a boat on rainy days.