

I have to meet a merchant in a dark forest where the cabin called the clover will give a map where the red beard hid the treasure but I think I got lost I have no sense of direction on land at sea I handle myself so naturally . What will I do in that, a large white wolf appears and when I realize it I carefully take out my pistol in its holster, he looked at me and walked away but before he made a sign for me to follow him and I reached the place where I was destined thank you wolf but when he I thanked disappeared.