

LOS TRES CERDITOS

In a small town not too far away, there lived a mother pig and her three little pigs. They were all very happy until one day the mother pig said to them:

-Children, you are all grown up now, it is time for you to be grown up little pigs and live by yourselves.

Before letting them go, she said to them:

-In the world nothing comes easy, therefore, you must learn to work to achieve your dreams.

Mommy Piggy said goodbye with a kiss on the cheek and the three little pigs went off to live in the world.

The youngest piglet, who was very, very lazy, did not pay attention to the words of mama piggy and decided to build a little house of straw to finish early and go to bed to rest.

The middle piggy, who was half lazy, half heeded the words of mama piggy and built a little house of sticks. The little house was crooked because he was half lazy and did not want to read the instructions to build it.

The oldest pig, who was the most diligent of them all, paid close attention to the words of mama pig and wanted to build a little house of bricks. The construction of her little house would take much longer. But this didn't matter to her; her new home would shelter her from the cold and also from the fearsome big bad wolf....

And speaking of the fearsome big bad wolf, he was prowling through the forest when he saw the little piggy sleeping peacefully through his window. The wolf got an enormous appetite and thought the piglet would make a very tasty snack, so he knocked on the door and said:

-Little piggy, little piggy, let me in.

The younger piglet woke up frightened and replied:

-No, no and no, I will never let you in.

The big bad wolf was furious and said:

I will huff and I will puff and I will blow and I will blow your house down.

The wolf huffed and puffed with all his might and the little straw house fell to the ground. Fortunately, the little pig had escaped to the middle pig's house while the wolf kept blowing.

The big bad wolf, feeling tricked, went to the middle piggy's house and knocked on the door and said:

-Little piggy, little piggy, let me come in.

The little pig in the middle answered:

- No, no and no, I will never let you in.

The hungry wolf was furious and said:

-I will huff and puff and I will blow your house down.

The wolf huffed and puffed with all his might and the little stick house came tumbling down. Luckily, the two little pigs had run to the older pig's house while the big bad wolf kept huffing and puffing. The two brothers, almost breathless, told him the whole story.

-It's very cold and you've been having a hard time, so let's enjoy the night in the warmth of the fire," said the eldest pig and lit the fireplace. Just then, the three little pigs heard a knock at the door.

-Piggy, piggy, let me in," said the big bad wolf.

The little pig answered:

- No, no and no, I will never let you in.

The hungry wolf was furious and said:

-I will huff and puff and blow and your house I will tear down.

The wolf huffed and puffed with all his might, but the little brick house resisted his huffing and puffing. More enraged and hungry than ever he decided to climb up the roof to get into the chimney. As he lowered the chimney, the wolf burned his tail on the campfire.

-OUCH! -cried the wolf.

And he ran off into the woods, never to be seen again.

One day, Mommy Piggy went to visit her beloved piglets and discovered that all three had built little houses out of bricks. The three little pigs had learned their lesson:

"In the world nothing comes easy, therefore, we must work to achieve our dreams."