

"The dream of Leandro Leoncillo"

Once upon a time there was a lion that lived in the savannah of Africa named Leandro Leoncillo. We all have dreams to fulfill, even animals. Leandro Leoncillo's dream was to open a barber shop where he could comb and groom all the animals of the savannah.

Mr. Leandro Leoncillo was going to make his dream come true. Tomorrow he would open the doors of his hairdresser "Leandro Hair salon". And it is that, what he liked most in the world was brushing his long hair. For this reason, since childhood he had always known that he wanted to be a hairdresser. And after having studied a lot and practiced with his family's long hair, Mr. Leandro was ready to take the big leap and open his own hair salon.

The night before, Mr. Leandro Leoncillo had put on his curlers, since he wanted to show off some beautiful curls, and had dyed his abundant hair in different colors to serve as a sampler for his clients. He had also hired Mr. Phillip Penguin, who gracefully besties himself to greet the animals kindly, and Madame Margot Moxa, who specialized in modern haircuts after studying at the New York Zoo.

The big day had arrived. The salon offered different types of food for customers to eat. The first to arrive was Mr. Patricio Papagayo, who wanted to add shine and glitter to his colorful plumage. The result was spectacular. Mrs. Ariadne Spider wanted a crest on the top of her head and it was Madame Margot Moxa who made it for her. She even gave this one a touch of orange on the ends of it to make it more showy. To soften Mr. Emilio Elefante's short hair he had a big belly that required many hands and a lot of soap. And in the end Mr. Leandro Leoncillo did a great job.

Everyone was very happy that they finally had a hairdresser like the one for people, because animals also like to be handsome and elegant. "Leandro Hair salon" was a complete success.
