The dog and his reflection.

A very hungry dog was walking around looking for something to eat, until a butcher threw him a bone. Carrying the bone in his snout, he had to cross a river. Looking at his reflection in the water, he thought he saw another dog with a bone bigger than his own, so he tried to snatch it away with a single bite. But when he opened his snout, the bone he was carrying fell into the river and was carried away by the current. That dog was very sad when he realized that he had released something that was real for chasing what was only a reflection.

Moral: Value what you have and don't lose it because you envy others.
